Siberia, Russia

Keeping warm

Holger Hoffmann from Bern, Switzerland is the latest winner of the KLM Photo Competition, having captured the theme 'Embrace' in this stunning portrait.

About the photo

"Last spring, I stayed with the Dolgan people, nomadic reindeer herders who live on the Tamyra Peninsula in North-Eastern Siberia," Holger tells us. "One day, our host, Spiridon, brought home a puppy, a gift from neighbours, who lived 70km away. The sleigh ride back took them several hours, and it was -20°C. Spiridon was visibly proud when he presented the puppy to his grandchildren. With time, it will adapt to the cold and stay outside day and night. The Dolgan's dogs are very tough and well trained."

The jury says

Our jurors selected this photo because of the clever use of colour. "The colour palette is restrained yet warm. The photographer has also succeeded in capturing the tenderness of the moment."

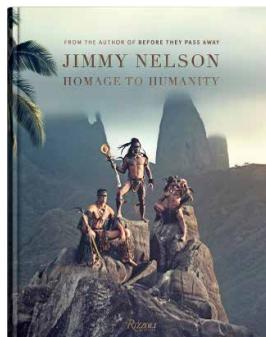

Join and win

Are you a keen (amateur or professional) photographer, capturing moving scenes during your travels? Please share these moments with us and our readers via the KLM Photo Competition. Visit photocompetition.klm.com, where you can read more about this month's central theme: 'Adventure'. Upload your best photos on this theme, try to inspire our jury, and you might win Jimmy Nelson's inspiring book Homage to Humanity (see below). The winner is selected based on the quality of the photo and the story behind it.

Grand prize

Once a year, we choose the best picture from our monthly winners. He or she will receive two KLM intercontinental Economy Class return tickets, to enjoy more inspiring travels and take more amazing photos.

Monthly prize

In Homage to Humanity (2018, Rizzoli), acclaimed photographer Jimmy Nelson presents his latest collection of 400 photos revealing an inclusive look at the people and cultures of over 30 iconic tribes from around the world. From the Himalayas – with the Laylap in Bhutan – to the last hidden outposts of Africa, with the Mundari in isolated South Sudan, these tribal cultures, many of which have long been hidden from the world's eyes, are beautifully documented.
